

Responsibilities of the peer reviewer are to check for:

1. Overall impression of the article (Readability, flow)
2. Discipline based accuracy (facts and claim checks)
3. Content management (if there is any content that is not clear please flag that for the author)
4. To remark on all the aforementioned things on the manuscript addressed to the author.

As a Peer Reviewer, your job becomes important in cementing the validity and credibility of the manuscript received by you.

Things to note:

- You do NOT make any changes to the article, ONLY suggestions based on the list mentioned above.
- ALL changes, clarifications and suggestion need to be addressed to the authors (who will be anonymous)
- Please note that you are part of a double blind procedure so you are anonymous to the author, and the author does not know who their peer reviewer is. Please maintain this confidentiality.
- You will only receive 1 manuscript and you will have the duration of 5 days to look over it before sending it back to the editorial team.
